Rosette 05

Larose Guyon

DESCRIPTION

Born from the bond between flower and bee, and from the collective work of the hive, Rosette evokes a field of sunflowers turning toward the light. Hand-blown glass globes, frosted and textured with the spiral pattern of a sunflower's heart, glow at the end of supple cables sheathed in braided brass, while hand-shaped brass petals seem to float in mid-air. Unlit, a sculpture; lit, a garden of light and patterned shadows.
